Supplier Relationship Management (SRM) is a strategic approach to unlock value and innovation, and reduce risk across your supply base. For the critical few suppliers, who are of strategic importance, it can enable you to realize the true potential of those relationships. Your supply base could be home to huge untapped potential, yet it may also harbour significant risk. We can help you implement a world class SRM approach in your organization. We can help you segment your supply base and determine the suppliers and supply chains that are important or strategic.

Our SRM approach is based around the Orchestra of SRM® - a proven means to determine and deploy a range of different supply base interventions for key suppliers according to how important they are, and what specifically makes them important. Our SRM programs combine our comprehensive tools and resources, available digitally, or supplied as a package onto your systems, with inspirational training from our expert trainers.

THE ORCHESTRA OF SRM

SRM is an umbrella term that covers many different elements. Just as each section in an orchestra plays according to a piece of music, the Orchestra of SRM provides a unique approach to determine the right intervention for each important supplier, according to why they are important.

The parts that make up the Orchestra of SRM are:

- Supplier Segmentation - Segmenting the supply base to determine which suppliers are important or strategic, and the intervention that will generate value for the business.
- Supplier Performance Measurement - Meaningful, targeted analysis and reporting to ensure compliance, or as a basis to drive improvement.
- Supplier Improvement and Development - Responding to and preventing supplier-related issues or developing supplier capability.
- Supplier Management - Ensuring compliance, managing risk and reviewing performance for important suppliers ongoing.
- Supplier Chain Management - Driving advantage and managing risk upstream in the supply chain, including realizing sustainability and CSR goals.
- Supplier Collaborative Relationships - Working with the critical few suppliers who can bring dramatic competitive advantage using our 5A™ process.
